

Contents

Introduction

By the Editors 1

Defense of a Modest Scientific Realism

Alan Sokal and Jean Bricmont

Comments by Stanley Barry Barnes and Felix Mühlhölzer 17

Scientific Realism: An Elaboration and a Defence

Howard Sankey

Comments by Trevor Pinch..... 55

Scientific Objectivity with a Human Face

Four Reflections from a Pragmatist Point of View

Holm Tetens

Comments by Howard Sankey and Sergio Albeverio 81

On Social Constructivist Accounts of the Natural Sciences

Stanley Barry Barnes

Comments by Wolfgang Krohn and Alan Sokal..... 105

Experimental Success and the Revelation of Reality:

The Miracle Argument for Scientific Realism

Martin Carrier 137

True is What is Considered True—

What is Considered True is True

Günter Küppers 163

Realism and Biological Knowledge

Jean Gayon..... 171

Objective Facts, Subjective Experiences, and Neuronal Constructs
Holk Cruse	191
Evidence, Logic and Moral Authority Experience and the Erosion of Certainties in Illiterate and Literate Societies
Georg Elwert	211
Some Remarks on the Hard Core of Soft Sciences
Maurice Godelier	237
The Mote and the Beam Who's Blind to Whom
Jean-Marc Lévy-Leblond	247
Neither Modernist Nor Postmodernist—A Third Way
Mara Beller
Comments by Jean Bricmont and Jay Rosenberg.....	265
From Science Wars to Science Worries: Some Reflections on the Scientific Conquest of Reality
Johannes Roggenhofer.....	293
Science Wars? Historical, Social and Epistemological Aspects of the “Sokal-Debate”
Jochen Hoock	307
Subject Index.....	323
Acknowledgements	327