Contents

Acknowledgements ..... v

Prologue ..... vii

1 Introduction 1
1.1 Problem setting 1
1.2 Research focus 3
1.3 Research proposition and central question 5
1.4 Structure of the book 5

2 Theoretical framework 9
2.1 Governance 9
2.1.1 A broad definition of a popular concept 9
2.1.2 Three ideal-types of governance and hybrid forms 12
2.1.3 Are hierarchies, networks and markets 'all-inclusive'? 19
2.2 Hierarchical, market and network governance 21
2.2.1 Hierarchical governance 21
2.2.2 Market governance 26
2.2.3 Network governance 30
2.2.4 Forms of network governance 35
2.2.5 Post-bureaucratic administration, a myth? 37
2.3 Relations between governance styles 45
2.3.1 Differences between hierarchical, network and market governance 45
2.3.2 Governance styles, complexity and ambiguity 50
2.3.3 How hierarchical, network and market governance undermine each other 51
2.3.4 Combining hierarchical, network and market governance 55
2.4 Governance: A cultural perspective 57
2.4.1 Governance styles as 'ways of life' 57
2.4.2 Governance styles and national cultures 61
2.4.3 Governance styles and organisational cultures 65

2.5 Metagovernance as the 'governance of governance' 66
2.5.1 Different views on metagovernance 66
2.5.2 Internal and external metagovernance 73
2.5.3 Introducing the public manager as metagovernor 75
2.5.4 Metagovernance as managing the governance trilemma 80
2.5.5 Metagovernance, line, project and process management 82
2.5.6 Governance, metagovernance and performance 83
2.5.7 Metagovernance and individual cultures 85
2.6 Conclusions 86

3 Research approach 87
3.1 Research question 87
3.2 Research framework 88
3.2.1 Analysing metagovernance: An interdisciplinary approach 88
3.2.2 An organisational perspective on governance 90
3.2.4 Research framework 93
3.2.5 The Green Heart Talks: Discovering network governance 95
3.2.6 Pegasus: The limits of networking in a hierarchical context 100
3.3 Research strategy 103
3.4 Case selection 110
3.4.1 Case selection criteria 110
3.4.2 National soil policies and local community policing 119
3.5 Application of the research strategy 121

4 Strategic policy making: Four soil protection cases 125
4.1 Soil protection: A late-comer in environmental policy 125
4.2 Soil protection policy in the Netherlands 127
4.2.1 Institutional and cultural context 128
4.2.2 Chronology of the case 130
4.2.3 Hierarchical, network and market governance 133
4.2.4 Application of metagovernance 144
4.2.5 Discussion and conclusions 146
4.3 Soil protection in Germany 147
4.3.1 Institutional and cultural context 148
4.3.2 Chronology of the case 153
4.3.3 Hierarchical, network and market governance 156
4.3.4 Application of metagovernance 165
4.3.5 Discussion and conclusions 166
4.4 Soil protection policy in the UK 169
4.4.1 Institutional and cultural context 169
4.4.2 Chronology of the case 172
4.4.3 Hierarchical, network and market governance 173

4.4.4 Application of metagovernance 181
4.4.5 Discussion and conclusions 183
4.5 Soil protection policy in the European Commission 184
4.5.1 Institutional and cultural context 184
4.5.2 Chronology of the case 189
4.5.3 Hierarchical, network and market governance 191
4.5.4 Application of metagovernance 195
4.5.5 Discussion and conclusions 197
4.6 A comparative perspective: Theoretical replication 198
4.6.1 Governance and metagovernance 198
4.6.2 Comparison of the 'governance footprint' 201

5 Street level policy-making: Community policing 205
5.1 Networking in the shadow of hierarchies and markets 205
5.2 Community policing in the Netherlands 209
5.2.1 Introduction 209
5.2.2 Institutional and cultural context 210
5.2.3 Chronology of the case 211
5.2.4 Hierarchical, network and market governance 214
5.2.5 Application of metagovernance 220
5.2.6 Discussion and conclusions: Literal replication 223
5.2.7 Discussion and conclusions: Theoretical replication 225

6 Possibilities and limitations of metagovernance as public management 229
6.1 Interaction of hierarchical, network and market governance 230
6.2 Occurrence of metagovernance 233
6.3 Comparison of strategic and operational policy processes 234
6.4 Comparison of four administrations 234
6.4.1 The Netherlands, Germany, the UK and the European Commission 234
6.4.2 Problems with the transferability of governance approaches 237
6.5 Metagovernance as public management: The metagovernor's rationale 242
6.5.1 Public management: Making sense and acting accordingly .. 242
6.5.2 Three views on the metagovernor's decision-making: The phase, the stream and the rounds model 245
6.5.3 The metagovernor's strategies 247
6.5.4 Dealing with the limitations of metagovernance 253
6.5.5 Feasibility of metagovernance on national, sectoral, process and individual levels 254
6.5.6 The metagovernor's framework conditions 254

6.5.7 Conclusion: The metagovernor's rationale 258
6.6 The metagovernor's qualifications 259

7 Practical implications: Increasing the metagovernance capacity ... 271
7.1 Optimisation of the metagovernor's qualifications 271
7.1.1 Increasing the willingness for metagovernance 271
7.1.2 Optimisation of the level of discretion 272
7.1.3 Increasing the metagovernance capability 274
7.2 Metagovernance and management development 275
7.2.1 Introduction: Management development in the public sector 275
7.2.2 Hierarchical management: Line and project management 278
7.2.3 Market management: 'Public' business administration 280
7.2.4 Network management: Network abilities and process management 281
7.2.5 Training in analysing the governance environment 284
7.2.6 Metagovernability and personal development 286
7.3 Metagovernance, reform and organisational change 294
7.3.1 (Meta)governance in public-sector reform programmes 294
7.3.2 Metagovernance and organisational change projects 297
7.3.3 Measuring governance and metagovernance 299

8 Conclusions 301

9 Further research questions 305

Summary 309
1. Theoretical part 309
2. Empirical part 313
3. Conclusions and further research questions 323

Epilogue 325

Annexes 329
36 Differences: Hierarchical, network and market governance 329
Interviewees 351

References 353

Index 389

About the author 401